Harry,

STAT

1. I have reviewed paper, and while it covers the major points, I still have some concerns. The real issue is when should a decision with respect to OTE location be made and with foreknowledge of what facts.

2. There is a question of new building capacity that must be answered by next summer to permit layout to begin. If there is a shortfall, the magnitude of the shortfall may have a bearing on who is left out.

3. There is the question of transportation and parking. If we find these constraints too uncomfortable, we may be looking for building occupants who require an above average per capita space allocation. In that case, OTE with its large classroom space may become a priority requirement for the new building.

4. Finally, there is the question of other component problems and attitudes. may resist a move to Langley if they feel in control of their destiny. FBIS with its foreign and uncleared visitor problem may opt or be asked by OS to opt out of the building. ORD comments have been made relative to their perceived need to be downtown close to the industrial contacts.

5. Based on considerations such as these, I strongly recommend against making a firm decision on OTE location now. If, when the NBPO comes up with a recommended occupancy plan next summer, OTE on balance is the best component to leave out, then so be it. But let's not make a decision today that may have to be reversed when all the facts are on the table.
